ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

PARALLEL PROXIES

A proxy server is provided with a plurality of prioritized proxies configured in parallel. The proxy server can include 1-to-n proxy subunits, where "n" can vary depending on the total priority levels available for any given system. Each service (e.g., document-handling)

10 request made to the proxy server is prioritized according to the prioritized proxy subunit that is configured to service the request, which increases the request handling response times for the higher priority requests, and thus, improves the overall performance of the proxy server involved.
